

THE MORNING APPEAL.

WEDNESDAY.....JANUARY 8

A Swindle all Around.

A swindle is being perpetrated upon the consumers of butter by selling them 1 1/2 pounds for 2 pounds, says the Plumas National Bulletin. Merchants charge the butter-makers with the responsibility for short weight rolls, and the butter-makers say the merchants will not buy full weight (2 lb.) rolls. This is not square dealing and the practice is contrary to law. It is far better for a merchant to give a customer full weight and make the profit by an advance in price. Dairymen should refuse to lend themselves to imposing this swindle on those who consume their butter. No reasonable man will expect a merchant to do business without a fair profit, but when the customer buys what is presumed to be two pounds of butter, the merchant should do what the law requires him to do—deliver two pounds.

The grocer gets his butter from the butter-maker who never pretends to put two pounds in a roll. But the ranchers are not the only people who deal in short weight. A good many wood-dealers have long ago quit selling sticks of wood four feet long. A bill was once introduced in the Legislature to compel wood men to sell sticks four feet long in order to make a cord, but the bill was beaten. Milkmen sell short measure and adulterate with water, and many dealer's scales sell short weight. It seems as if nearly everybody doing business in the West, had to swindle somebody in order to keep even.

Hard Lines For the Young.

Arthur McEwen in his San Francisco letter to the Salt Lake Tribune has the following:

But however it may turn out as to Dr. Brown, the evil that has been done by the scandal is great and irreparable. The newspapers are a quiver with it, and it is the talk of the town. Young ears are sharp and newspapers are accessible, parents or no parents. The blazoning of the bestiality of the North Beach brutes by the "Mothers of San Francisco," the exposure of Price, and the Brown story have served to give forbidden knowledge to thousands and thousands of girls and boys who else would have remained in innocent ignorance. "Confound these parsons and reforming women," a man said to me—a good man, too. "Why are they forever stirring up the dirt of life? When nothing else, nothing new, attracts them, they pitch into the social evil, without the least expectation of extirpating it. Now they have some scandals of their own to keep them busy. By Jove, what with the parsons, the women and the newspapers the world's not a fit place to bring up one's daughter in."

The Freezing Shake.

Mr. McKinley has a greeting which he uses on men whom he knows are opposed to him. Let a Harrison or Reed boomer drift into sight and the Major hurriedly assumes his Napoleonic face. The bland smile fades away and two perpendicular lines show on his forehead. He throws his head back and his chest out and looks the visitor sternly in the eye. He extends his hand slowly and keeps his elbow close to his side, as if he wished to withdraw his hand as quickly as possible. There is no gentle pressure or energetic shake, the Major raises his hand once and then lets the visitor's hand drop.

The shakee feels as if he had been greeting a man of ice. This shake imparts a creepy feeling, which runs from the hand up the arm and chills the whole body. Men who have gone through this ordeal have been seen to walk swiftly over to the nearest steam radiator and lean against it for half an hour. Others have been observed slipping into the cave and saying "something hot" to the man behind the mahogany.

Dr. Talmage differs radically from most preachers, as he never gets enough work to satisfy him. When he was preaching twice every Sunday to great congregations in the Brooklyn Tabernacle he used to go out on the lecture circuit to work off superfluous energy. Now he is an assistant pastor in a Washington church, and by agreement preaches only in the evening. Though he draws by far the larger congregation, he is not satisfied, but wants to preach Sunday morning also. His church will have to devise some new scheme for absorbing his passion for work or there will be trouble between Talmage and his brother preacher.

Germany will take all the American bonds offered, and incidentally take a shot at England. This is no joke. Germany shoots to kill when she takes up arms.
